Introduction

We began the Hustle Machine podcast in order to develop & foster growth within a community of solopreneurs, entrepreneurs, and side-hustlers. Yeah - people just like you!

In fact, our primary goal in starting the show and community was to redefine the obsessive work idea of having to hustle while letting other areas of your life whither away.

And, it's because of our own goals to help create a community that we ended up creating this simple monthly goal planner to help you get your ideas down on paper and start making serious steps toward personal and professional development.

Part of our core philosophy, which we hope will soon become part of your own, is to maintain focus on the goals that matter while not losing touch with the people that matter. No relationships or important parts of your life should suffer in order for you to reach your goals. We're here to help you find balance.

Take these following pages and print them out each month to help you with your goals. Write down those big goals, detail the small ones, and the in-between milestones you want to help you reach the success you long for.

Now get started. Make it happen.

What is Hustle Machine? We want to show you can hustle as a business owner or freelancer and still establish a balance between business and personal life. We want to change up the business culture and overcome that negative training.

The Weekly Planner

MON	TUE	WED	THU	FRI	SAT	SUN

There is no formula for success - only best practices. Use this weekly planner to take care of all the smaller items you might've detailed in your GOAL PRIORITIES that didn't make your Top 4. Just be consistent with your work, keep yourself accountable to your goals and milestones, and make it happen each and every day.

Things To Do

Need a quick reference To Do List? You can print one of these out for each day of the week.

Stop, Start, Continue

At the end of each month, take time to reflect back on your goals, wins, losses, and all the milestones along the road. In each respective section, give yourself feedback on things you should stop, start, and continue in the next month. You can use this as a framework to always improve yourself.

Start
What should I start doing?

Stop
What should I stop doing and when?

Continue
What's currently working that I should continue to implement?
